BENTON COMMUNITY COLLEGE

VOLUME 8 NUMBER 20 • APRIL 6, 1977

WEATHER

Bless the Weather coming to us according to the National Weather Service. We should see fair skies today and tonight with some partial cloudiness Thursday.

Outlook through Saturday is for fog and low clouds at the Coast and generally fair weather inland. Temperatures will be in the 50's at the Coast and 'round 60-70 in the Valley. Chance of rain close to 0%. □

news flashes

Energy Fair at OSU thru Sat.

Coming up this weekend in Corvallis is the Oregon State Energy Fair. The Fair will run April 7-9 in the Memorial Union on the OSU Campus. There will be displays on energy conservation, energy saving appliances, energy financing programs and how to buy and use energy construction materials.

The hours will be 10:30 a.m.-9:30 p.m. on Thursday and Friday and from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Saturday. Parking is available at Parker Stadium, at 25 and Western St.

The event is sponsored by OSU, Pacific Power, PGE, NW Natural Gas Co. and the Oregon Dept. of Energy.

For more information call the OSU Memorial Union. □

Spring Arts Festival in Albany

The eighth annual Albany Spring Arts Festival will be coming up this April 29 through May 1. Anyone wishing to exhibit or sell arts, crafts or photography may enter them April 23 at Flynn's Custom House, 22 W. First St. in Albany. For more information contact Terri Hopkins, Creative Arts Guild Director, PO Box 841, Albany. □

Senate seats up for grabs

The offices of ASLBCC President, Vice-president, Activities Director, and Business Manager, as well as six seats in the student senate, are all up for grabs in the ASLBCC Elections to be held April 13-14.

Deadline for petitions for these positions is this Friday, April 8. Petitions are available in CC213 or on various posters around campus. They should be turned in to Cheryl Corder in either CC214 or B204. □

Food Service changes hours

Food service hours have changed a little this term. The cafeteria will be open from 7:30 a.m.-9 p.m. Monday through Thursday, 7:30 a.m.-3:30 p.m. on Friday and 8:30-11:30 a.m. on Saturday.

The Santiam Room is open for breakfast Monday through Friday from 7:30-9 a.m. and again for lunch from 11-12:30.

The Sprout (located in the Alesia/Calapooia Rm.) is open for lunch only from 11:00-12:45 Monday through Friday. □

Last day for tryouts

Today is the last day to try out for the upcoming production of "The World of Carl Sandburg." Tryouts will be held in the Main Forum from 3 to 5 p.m. They are open to all full or part time students and to members of the community. Persons selected may register to receive college credit for participation in the show. For more information contact Steve Rossberg at ext. 287. □

Dr. Needham revamps college structure

Tom Trower

The whole idea is to do a better job of teaching," said LBCC President Ray Adams in reference to a rash of changes in the school's organizational structure.

The most notable change in the organizational process, which primarily involves regrouping programs and responsibilities, occurred when Dr. Adams was named to the new post of Vice-President for Planning and Development, and Jack Liles became Dean of Instruction.

Adams was formerly dean of instruction, and Liles held the now vacated position of assistant to the president.

"I've been here seven years," Adams said, "and this is the most significant organizational change we've had. We've grown and grown, and we're a different kind of school than we were five years ago."

Needham stated that, "The restructuring attempts to equalize responsibilities for college programs and provide more careful and consistent planning and development efforts without increasing administrative costs."

One of the major reasons for the alterations was accreditation. Accreditation is a periodic evaluation of schools conducted by accrediting associations. The purpose is to insure that the quality of education meets certain high standards, according to Needham.

The Northwest Accrediting Association is scheduled to visit LBCC later this year, and Needham gave the institution a preliminary examination and made the necessary changes.

"As president, I was supposed to ask a lot of questions," stated Needham in regard to the school's structure. "I found out that many people felt that these (changes made) were the major concerns."

Adams, who has been with the college since 1968, will be responsible for all aspects of college planning and will handle relations with the legislature and state agencies. He will also be in charge of faculty and management personnel, contract negotiations, affirmative action and staff development.

One of Adams' new duties will be to seek out educational grants from government and private foundations to finance special projects and supplement college income.

He will also serve as chief administrator for data processing services, the Office of Public Information and the Learning Resource Center, including graphics services, media services and the library.

Adams views an integral part of his new job as keeping up to date with the needs of LBCC's staff members.

"It relates to planning and development and keeping current with the needs of all the staff members," he said. "In a highly technological society like ours, rapid changes occur."

And Adams is optimistic about the structural change.

"I think it's great," he exclaimed. "I'm looking forward to it a great deal. I think anyone would be pleased with a more responsible job, but then you can't say that it (vice-president) is more responsible than dean of instruction. Dean of instruction is a very responsible position also."

editorials . . . and I'll bet you didn't even know that watermelons could speak French!

by Sue Storm

A terrible disease came over me last weekend, and it seems to grow worse with each passing day. The symptoms are most alarming; my skin burns and is turning bright red, I've been seen wearing very few clothes, and I have a compulsive desire to take off my shoes. Yesterday I couldn't control it—I sat down in the middle of a grocery store, took off my shoes and started walking on the mushrooms. People later told me I had a delirious glint in my eye and was mumbling something in Latin that sounded like "lucusun a nonsun lusundo..."

After giving the store manager $20, I left clutching my bag of broken mushrooms. I noticed his face was kind of red too and warned him that he might be contracting the very same disease that had so completely struck me.

I was walking home singing the same song that had been stuck in my head since Sunday—I don't even know the words, something about a bluebird, though. A little boy approached me with his arms full of daffodils and said, "YawannabuyafLOURfurapenny?" I felt myself losing control again as I gave him $10 and took his last 16 flowers. I then did a very shocking thing: I gave everyone who passed me on the street a flower. I was even running up to cars that had stopped at an intersection and shoving a flower through that window with what I'm sure must have been a most maniacal grin.

I had just been swatted with an umbrella by a little old lady with hay fever, with mercifully, a friend found me.

"What in the world are you doing?" my friend screamed.

"Springsprungspre?" I said innocently.

Seeing how totally incapacitated I was, my friend took me by the hand and led me home, gave me warm milk and cookies and put me to bed.

They later found me on the roof, baying at the moon.

If it doesn't clear up soon, I don't know what I'm going to do. I can't keep my mind on anything and I'm losing my memory. Did you know that watermelons can speak French? And that if you chew wintergreen lifesavers in the dark sparks will fly from your teeth...? Sometimes at night the pickles in your refrigerator go dancing with oranges...

We offer our deepest apologies if the editor has disturbed any classes by running around the campus screaming about a huge yellow U.F.O in the sky...

If you thought 'Reefer Madness' was funny, you'll be rolling in the aisles at this one . . . you're the star

by Cliff Kneale

We laughed, "Reefer Madness" had us rolling. What sort of sick society would believe all of the erroneous information that was contained in its content? We chuckled at the poor acting, and the idea that marijuana could drive one insane.

Then I stopped laughing; it crossed my mind that Reefer Madness is as applicable a film today as it was in the 1930's when it was produced. Yes, I did say as applicable. I am not referring to content, but to what it says today that it did not in the 1930's.

It says, "Laugh society, you are still sick." In the 1930's little or nothing was known about the weed, it was safe to assume that it could indeed drive one insane. In the 1970's, we know that this is not true. That, in fact, nothing truthfully harmful has been discovered in connection with the use of the much popular euphoric.

We also know that tobacco can ultimately take our life; that alcohol is a drug that in itself can destroy both the mind and body tissue. We are very aware that many of the food additives applied to our daily diets are, if not harmful, at least not proven harmless.

We get loaded—a baggie in one pocket and a credit card in the other—conscious all the while of how enlightened we are, how marijuana has allowed us to see the world as it really is, and the credit card has gone mad, kidnapping our freedom to move as we please.

Our culture claims that the user of marijuana is, for the most part, a person who does not advocate the present corporate system. He often openly campaigns for the closure of this or that industry, often for good cause. Yet while paying lip service to the ideal, the marijuana user has turned the manufacturers of cigarette papers from industrial paupers into giants in the same spectrum.

Yes, we condone tobacco while it produces death causing cancers on our inner organs; we have 9,000,000 people sick with chronic alcoholism; their livers and brains turning to fat and mush. Still we discuss how wide and far we have progressed in the understanding of drugs.

Millions of people file bankruptcy each year, but do the American people establish a limit to their credit use, or do the financial institutions try to find an alternative system? I think not.

Where then, do we feel have the conscienciousness to laugh and rankle a film like Reefer Madness for being wrong in its time, while in our enlightened age we will submit to far greater evils than a misconception concerning a drug?

We laugh when we should cry rape. □

Do high school students belong on campus?

To the Editor:

On Saturday, March 12, I was working at LBCC as secretary for a weekend meeting. That day was also the day of the "Skills Contest" for high school students in the surrounding areas. That day was also the day I had my tape deck, my tapes and my speakers ripped off from my car.

I have been attending LBCC for one year—leaving my car unlocked in the parking lot for one year—and nothing has ever been stolen from my car. Due to this fact, I feel that there is a strong relationship between the fact that that day was the day that a number of high school students were allowed the privilege of using the facilities at LBCC AND the day I got ripped off.

I strongly feel that if these students are to be allowed the use of LBCC they should be expected, on that one day at least, to act like responsible people and if they cannot so act, the privilege should be removed. I do believe my car was broken in by one of these high school students although I have no proof.

What I am recommending is that LBCC not be used for Skills Contest any longer since vandalism and Skills Contest seem to fall on the same day.

—Patty Coffey

Student resents low intelligence campaigning

To the Editor:

As a student who voted in the last LBCC election and who will vote in the next, I am moved to express my strong feeling of insult at the caliber of campaign material which has appeared so far. I am aware of the work that our student government has been involved in and that we as a group have power to influence state government policy on our behalf.

There are several special interests on this campus which have been furthered through the efforts of our student government. They have contacted student senators, who presented their issues to the senate, which took a stand pro or con, and then through regular weekly phone contact with the state senate aids, endorsed or condemned the issue in the name of all LBCC students.

This action has then been followed up with the provision of lobbyists who are presently working on six particular issues. I consider this to be quite influential compared to the weight of an individual or a small special interest group. Also, the same course of action occurs through our affiliation with CCOSAC when our representatives present our issues at those meetings. Then the endorsements and/or condemnations are weighted even more heavily, as they represent student opinion on 13 campuses, or approximately 250,000 students.

It is also to be remembered that student fees provide 17% of the multi-million dollar funds which operate this school. That fact makes a very powerful influence on the decisions which operate this college. That includes our ability to accept or reject our instructors, determine what information the catalog will include, arbitrate grievances between faculty and students and have input into curriculum planning. The student senate is involved in 13 of the decision-making committees on campus.

With these things in mind, I ask candidates to show us the respect that's befitting to such a worthy group. Please base your campaigns on issues which already concern us, your plan for future involvements and your capability for accomplishment.

The junior high school level of TV commercial, hard-sell tactics is offensive to me. I would like to see candidates who know what the student care for. I urge you all to vote intelligently; it is important that our power be wielded responsibly.

Thank you for the opportunity to express myself.

Jane Geringer

Liles, who will oversee the operations of all instructional units, including Community Education and Vocational Education, echoed Adams' enthusiasm. "It will be challenging, but I'm going to enjoy it," stated Liles. "Dealing closely with the instructional program is something that I enjoy. I'm really looking forward to it."

The structural change will benefit the college in several ways, according to Adams. As a result of rapid overall growth in the past three or four years, Adams says, "The president thought we would get on top of organizational changes like planning and development. Reorganization will help us do some things that haven't been done quite as well as we would have liked."

In addition to the shift of Adams and Liles, Community Education Director Michael Patrick has been named associate dean of instruction, and Barbara Dixon, past assistant to the dean of instruction, is now assistant dean of Vocational Education and Institutional Operations.

Former purchasing agent Dale Reed has been given the title of director of personnel and purchasing. He will take over the classified personnel responsibilities held by Liles.

Rita Lambert, former coordinator of financial aids, is the new director of financial aids and placement. James Haggoner has resigned as placement director and that position has been filled also.

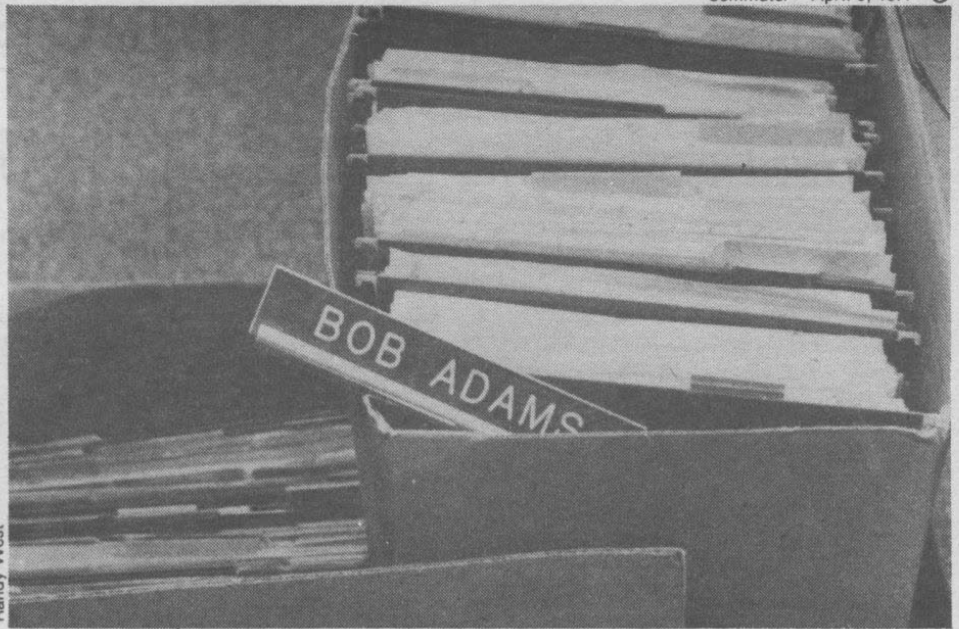

William Siebler will assist Adams in developing grant proposals as well as serving as director of the Learning Resource Center.

Other changes include the increase in the number of instructional divisions from four to six.

The Business and Industrial Division, which was twice as large as any other instructional unit, will be split into separate divisions, with all apprenticeship training included in the Industrial Division. The Allied Health and Physical Education Division will now become the Health Occupations and Physical Education Divisions.

The Developmental Center, which includes math and language arts labs, tutoring and testing will become a separate unit within Student Personnel Services.

All changes went into effect at the beginning of spring term except for changes in the instructional units and Developmental Center, which will occur at the start of summer term. □

Bob Adams and Jack Liles switched offices, but Adams also moves into a new title.

Community education makes changes

by Cliff Kneale

Community education, in keeping with the rest of LBCC, is undergoing some structural and organizational changes of its own. These include some shifts in personnel and an expected 8 to 10 per-cent increase in the classes offered.

As of July 1 this year the apprenticeship program will come under the direction of the new Industrial Division rather than the office of Community Education.

Even so, the department is still obligated the responsibility of maintaining the LBCC contract with the Carpenters Joint Apprenticeship Trust, according to Mike Patrick, director of Community Education and Albany Center. "I feel the changes will result in a closer association with the apprentices," Patrick said.

Some shifts in personnel have occurred during the department's reorganization as well. Patrick still maintains his position as director, but has been assigned the additional title of Associate Dean of Instruction. "This does not involve any addition to my duties, but rather a change in the lines of communication," Patrick stated.

Ann Crisp has been given more responsibility in the Albany Center. She is now a full-time coordinator of parent education and homemaking, and will take on one person as a half time assistant. Crisp replaces Gina Andreasen in that position, while Andreasen returns to full time teaching and assumes the responsibility of training new part time instructors for the parent education and homemaking program.

"We often have applicants who have all the expertise needed in their field, but lack the experience in teaching," Patrick explained this change.

Two Community Education people have undergone changes in Linn County. Mona Waibel, coordinator for the Sweet Home Center, is retaining that position with a change in her work schedule. Waibel has in the past been employed as a half-time employee on a 12 month basis. She now is employed on a three-quarter time basis for nine months out of the year. She will not be working in the summer term.

This change has been initiated due to a low summer term enrollment in the Sweet Home Center. It has also resulted in Bill Jordan, director of the Lebanon Center, becoming the Community Education coordinator for the whole of Eastern Linn County.

Jordan's area now includes Lebanon, Sweet Home, Scio and Brownsville.

Patrick is optimistic about the changes. "These new lines of communication will result in closer ties with other campus divisions, and improved programs for the community," he said. □

Bitterman 11th in nationals

By Al Rowley

Linn-Benton's own pool shark Frank Bitterman capped his expense paid trip to South Carolina by placing 11th in the National Intercollegiate Billiard Championships March 23-25.

Pabst Blue Ribbon Beer sponsored a double elimination, straight pool tourney and paid the way for the 30 men and women regional winners. Competition for the national title was at the university of South Carolina campus.

Bitterman earned his berth at the nationals by shooting his way through the winners bracket of the Northwest nationals, held in February at the University of Oregon. The Northwest tourney consists of six states and British Columbia. In all, 15,000 billiards players competed in the 15 regional tournaments.

In the opening round of the nationals, Bitterman upset third seeded Steve Egdahl of Boston University. Egdahl later ran 58 straight balls for a high run in the tourney. Bitterman was impressed with Egdahl's shooting ability and was pleased with the upset. Perhaps he was too pleased.

"If I made a mistake it was overestimating the competition," confessed Bitterman. "I went back there to win it."

In the second round Bitterman fell to the strategy of Jack Austin, Marshall University. "I was more impressed with Egdahl's shooting ability than Austin's. I was more impressed with Austin's strategy," Bitterman commented. Austin went on to finish second behind the tournament champion Jay Hungerfeild of Arizona State.

"I should have been up more," said Bitterman of his second loss and the tourney in general.

The highlight of the trip for Bitterman was the opportunity to compete and converse with nationally ranked players. He explained, "To find competition around here you have to get out and drive."

Bitterman's only complaint of the tourney was that the men were required to wear jackets while shooting. "They are trying to clean up the image of the game of pool," remarked Bitterman. "You don't see golfers, bowlers and tennis players being physically hampered with inhibiting clothing."

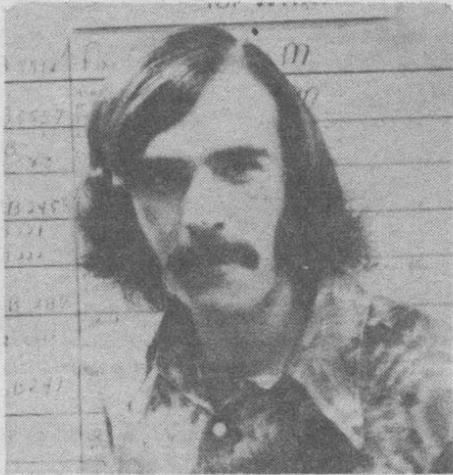

Also placing at the nationals was Oregon State University student Mari-dana Haydon. She finished seventh in the women's division. □

Student candidates state election strategy

Student government campaign platforms reflect positions -- promise of close race enters its first week

Phil Sarro

Phil Sarro Candidate for President

In the past year as an ASLBCC Senator, I have tried to increase the rights of the students at LBCC. Working with the students of the different programs, trying to ensure the educational equality, the standard of education, the highest standard of classes for the lowest cost to the students.

At the state level, working as Legislative Research Assistant for ASLBCC, I have worked for financial aid, child care and placing students at the negotiation table during contract talks between the faculty and the administration. Having spent the last year as the assistant to the President, I have worked with the Board of Presidents of CCOSAC.

Working for the students is what I have done, and will continue to do as President of the ASLBCC.

James Kinsey

James Kinsey: Senatorial candidate

Born in Albany. Graduated Frankfurt American High School, Ff/m Germany. 3 years U.S. Army, attended Central Texas College 2 years; Member U.S. Army Reserve, 20th Psychological Operation in Portland.

There is no substitute for experience. My past in both the business and military community gives me a degree of advancement in which to draw upon in dealing with the school community to effectively represent my constituents as fellow students.

Mike Hardy

Michael Hardy Candidate for President

I was born in Chicago. I moved to Oregon in 1968 and worked for a local construction company for six years. I then went to work for Wah Chang and while there became involved in the local union which was the United Steelworkers of America. I left Wah Chang in '75. After earning a GED, I enrolled at LBCC Summer term of 1975.

My platform is a simple one: I want to make the student government more responsive to the entire student body, not just a select few. I want to help the mature, work seasoned student as well as the young continuing student.

Pat Sarro

Pat Sarro Candidate for Activities-Programming Director

I propose:

To make LBCC a gathering point for our students, their friends, neighbors, and families. There is a lack of opportunity in our community to get together, enjoy themselves and not pay an arm and a leg to do it.

To use advance publicity and advance ticket sale, through the usual outlets, to build up audiences and enable us to bring better entertainment, music, drama and speakers to our campus that in the past we have not been able to afford.

Elections next week

Rod Ortman

Rod Ortman Candidate for President

1 year as a student senator. Past president of Philomath Jaycees.

The key to cooperative education lies in the development of input from the community. The students represent that community input.

Fred Beauregard

Fred Beauregard
Position; Vice-president

I have served on the student government for two consecutive years as an elected senator. During my terms of office I've accomplished several goals for the benefit of the student body. These goals were 1) instituting daycare hours from half days to full days. 2) Working with the administration and financial aids for the purpose of recapitalization of the Emergency Student Fund from $1000 to $3000. 3) Most recently I've taken over the representation of the students complaints process.

Platform: As vice-president I will be able to institute great change in the type of representation the students of Linn-Benton want and need. There is great need for communication and feedback between student government and the students in each and every department on campus. I believe I can accomplish this.

LPN information meet

Licensed Practical Nurses interested in becoming Registered Nurses are invited to attend an informational meeting at LBCC April 12.
 LBCC has approved a pilot project for the 1977-78 school year in which LPNs who have at least two years of experience in the past five years may be able to enter the Associate Degree Nursing program.
 The meeting will provide information on admission procedures, course requirements and the length of the proposed program.
 It will be held in the Calapooia Room on the second floor of the College Center building at 7 p.m.
 The college is expanding its entering nursing class from 24 to 36 this fall, and at the same time is looking for LPNs who may be able to enter the program at a more advanced level. □

Three seats on board

Three seats on the LBCC Board of Education will be up for election on April 19.
 In Zone 2-3 (Albany) Board President Ethel Yocum is running unopposed. In Zone 1 (Eastern Central Linn) Bill Swegar will be stepping down and Bob Jordan of Brownsville is running unopposed for that seat. The only real contest seems to be shaping up in Zone 5 (rural Benton County) where incumbent Joe Malcom faces Charles Phillips of Adair Village and Joe Novak of North Albany. □

LBCC diamondmen anxious to defend OCCAA title

by Mike Kennedy

Under the helm of first year coach Dave Dangler, the Roadrunner baseball team is anxious to embark on their attempt to capture their third straight Oregon Community College Athletic Association title, LBCC has won five of the last six championships.

Dangler arrived at Linn-Benton by way of Portland's Reynolds High School, where last year he guided the Lancer freshmen to a 7-2 mark. "I'm really excited at the chance to coach at the college level," said Dangler. "On paper we have an outstanding baseball team. It's going to be my job to put that talent to work."

Four lettermen return from last year's championship team, which posted a 26-2 league mark. Centerfielder Randy Melton will head the returners. Melton was named to the all league, all region and all district teams as a freshman, while compiling a .315 batting average for the season. Other returners include first baseman Kelly Davidson, shortstop Jeff Boyd and pitcher Dan Campbell. Boyd was rewarded last year with all league and all region honors while hitting .340. Davidson was a second team all league selection with a .290 batting average. Campbell, the sole hurler returning, carried a 6-3 record last year.

"The sophomores will be looked upon for leadership," said Dangler. "But we have a great bunch of freshman." The rookie dominated pitching staff will be led by southpaw Jeff Hanslovan. Hanslovan, according to Dangler, has the potential to fan "10 to 15" batters a game. Joining Hanslovan in the pitching rotation will be Dan Johnson and Cliff Mackey.

To round out the starting line up, South Albany's Jerry Douglas will alternate with Johnson in left field, while Matt Stilwill will occupy right field.

Besides Boyd and Davidson, three past members of Portland's Wilco League will round out the starting infield. They are Marc Caplan at second base, Mike Kennedy at third and John Cosby behind the plate.

Rounding out the starting nine, Greg Brugato will be the designated hitter, while sophomore transfer Bruce Beltz will share the catching chores with Cosby.

"Right now I'd say our strength lies in our defense," stated Dangler. "But we also have good team speed and above average power." "Our pitching is going to be the key," he added. "It remains to be seen how well we will do in that area."

March 29, the Roadrunners were host to Judson Baptist CC in the league opener for both teams, and came away with a pair of wins. The scores were 30-0 and 8-2. The LBCC nine were talking base hits all day as they had little trouble with the Judson pitchers.

In the first game the Roadrunners tallied 23 hits. Melton chalked up five hits, three of which were doubles, and five runs batted in (RBI's). Boyd and Davidson each got four hits, a home run and four RBI's. To round out the hitting onslaught, Stilwill popped three hits, including two doubles and three RBI's.

Hanslovan and Armando Quintero combined for an outstanding pitching performance, limiting Judson to one hit while striking out 15.

In game two the Roadrunners had a tougher go of things but still managed an 8-2 victory. Judson tallied first, scoring both of their runs in the first inning. The lead didn't last long, though, as the Roadrunners countered with three first inning runs and breezed in for the win.

Freshman pitcher Johnson got the win as he replaced starter Cliff Mackey in the first inning and went on to limit the Crusaders to one hit while fanning 12. Boyd and Caplan shared hitting honors, each collecting two hits. Boyd also knocked in three runs. Rookie Douglas had a triple for the Roadrunners to go along with doubles by Brian Holman and Davidson.

Saturday April 2, Blue Mountain CC came to town, and the Roadrunners ran their league record to 4-0 as they swept a pair of games.

The day was marked by two outstanding pitching performances by Roadrunner freshmen. In the first game, backed by the one hit pitching of Hanslovan and Quintero, Linn-Benton tipped the Timberwolves 7-3. Hanslovan struck out 14 hitters, and with two out in the seventh inning, came within one pitch of throwing a no hitter.

The Roadrunners had a hard time getting their bats going as they collected only four hits in the game. The one big blow of the game was a tremendous home run over the left fence by Douglas.

The Roadrunner hitting attack was paced by Davidson, Kennedy and Douglas, who each had two hits. Right fielder Stilwill and Davidson each collected doubles. □

In the second game freshman pitcher Randy Oetken accomplished a pitcher's dream by tossing a no run, no hit game for an 8-0 win. Oetken, backed by a couple of fine defensive plays by shortstop Boyd, struck out five Blue Mountain batters.

The Roadrunner hitting attack was paced by Davidson, Kennedy and Douglas, who each had two hits. Right fielder Stilwill and Davidson each collected doubles. □

Baseball excursion releases Dangler

Pete Porter

Dave Dangler's freshman-dominated OCCA baseball team registered a one win, two loss, one washout record during a spring vacation jaunt to northern California.

The Roadrunner's scheduled contest against Sacramento's American River Junior College was cancelled due to rain.

LBCC's Dan Johnson, in relief of starter Cliff Mackey, held the College of the Siskiyou in check as the visiting Oregonians posted an 11 to 8 win over West Weed's 9 on March 21st.

Dangler's diamondmen pushed two Siskiyou hurlers for 11 hits, featuring doubles by Kelly Davidson, Jeff Boyd and Johnson. The long-ball hitting Davidson was credited with four hits while Boyd collected three.

"My reaction in general to our trip down south was that I was pleased. In general we hit well and got fairly strong pitching. At times our defense showed we needed some improvement. Once we have returned home, we have been working hard to improve these areas."

-Dave Dangler, LBCC Baseball Coach

Butte Community College of Oroville swept a doubleheader from the touring OCCA team, 7 to 5 and 6 to 1 Wednesday, March 23rd.

The Roadrunners' Matt Stilwell posted a solo homer in the second and teammate John Cosby's grand slam hit in the fourth inning gave Dangler's men a brief 5 to 2 lead in the opener. However, Butte responded with a five run fifth inning off LBCC's Jeff Hanslovan to seal the victory.

In the nightcap, Roadrunner freshman Armando Quintero was tagged for three homers en route to a 6 to 1 win.

Roadrunners honored by OCCAA

Pete Porter

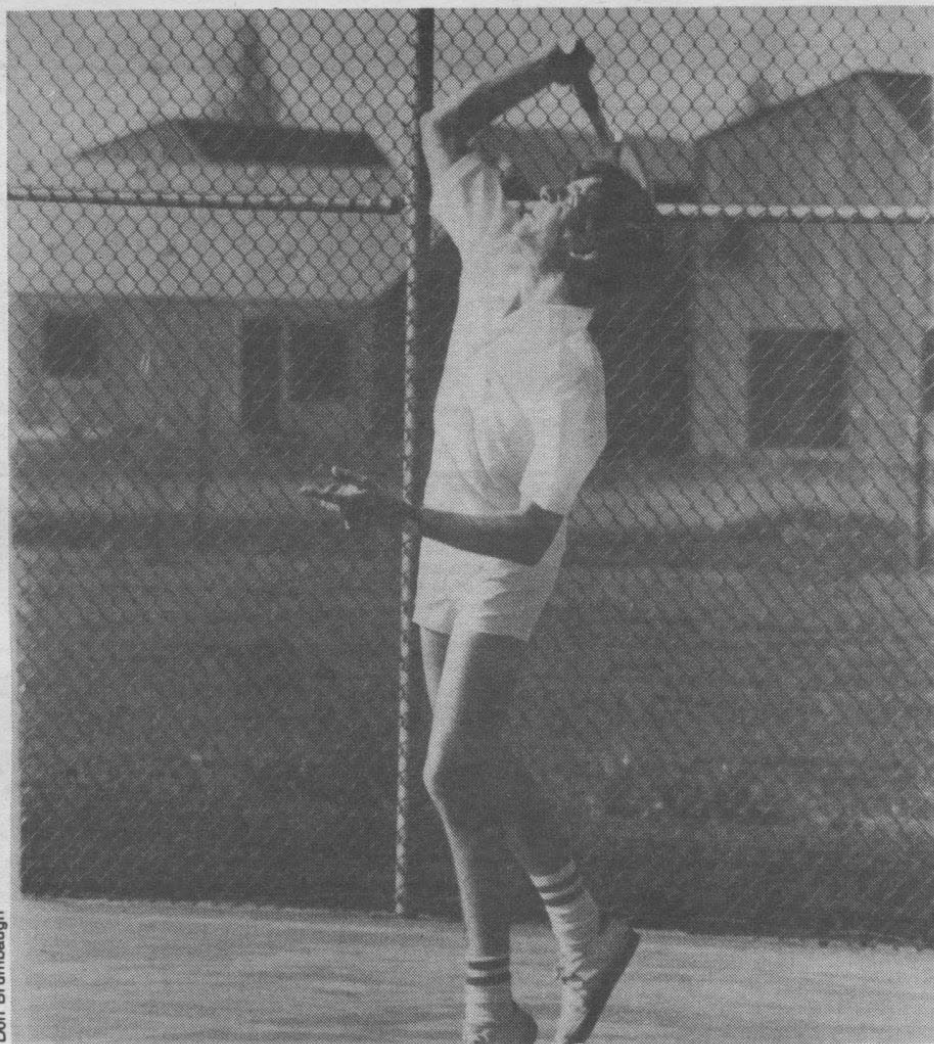

Two Linn-Benton players, freshmen Jim Dungey and Lee Bradish, have been selected to the 1977 Oregon Community College Athletic Association's (OCCAA) All-Star team, according to information recently released.

Joining these hoopsters on this 'dream unit' is another freshman, Central Oregon's Dave Hildahl; and Lane's Kevin McCarthy and Clackamas' Charles Sampson, both sophomores.

Linn-Benton's veteran coach, Butch Hampton, was also honored as OCCAA's co-coach of the year, along with Central Oregon's Glen Kinney.

Dungey, 6 foot 1 freshman from West Linn High School, was the conference's scoring leader with a 19.1 point game average. Bradish, 6'4" pivot man who prepped at Crescent Valley High School, tallied 18.3 points per game.

The second team roster included two Umpqua sophomores, Bill Poch and
