

Budget wins by landslide

"...joy to you and me..."

With the LBCC swing choir electrifying the audience with a foot-stomping rendering of "Joy To The World," and the TV monitor registering a vote of 4847 yes to 3233 no, there was plenty

Dr. Robert A. Miller, chairman of the budget drive, demonstrates the dignity and decorum with which he conducts his office at all times. Asked for his response to the vote, he replied, "Oh boy oh boy oh boy oh boy!"

2 year schools double chance

OREGON BOARD OF EDUCATION
EDU-GRAM

A two-year college in a community more than doubles the chances for disadvantaged students to continue their education after high school.

The opportunities offered by these two-year institutions are high-lighted in a special section on community colleges appearing in the March issue of "American Education" magazine, official publication of HEW's Office of Education.

In an article introducing the community college section, Dr. Sidney P. Marland, Jr., U.S. Commissioner of Education, states that the concept of career education is being carried out by the two-year colleges offering more than 10,000 programs leading to an associate degree.

He points out that almost 1,000 two-year institutions of various size and purpose are handling an enrollment of close to 2.5 million, which will grow to an estimated 3.3 million by 1975.

"Community colleges," says Doctor Marland, "are in a unique position to contribute to the realization of career education, since they perform a range of educational tasks closely related to community needs."

Although the special magazine section mentions the role of the community college in preparing students for transfer to four-year institutions, it deals mainly with the student who prepares himself for employment after two years of education.

COMMUTER opens editor positions

The LBCC Publications Board announced at its last meeting that paid editorial positions on the 1972-1973 COMMUTER staff are now open. The positions available are: Editor-in-chief, Layout Editor, Sports Editor, and Advertising Manager.

The responsibility of the Editor-in-chief is the general supervision of all aspects of the newspaper. He makes writing and photographic assignments, determines page form and content, arranges for delivery and circulation, and writes frequent editorials. The salary of the Editor-in-chief is $450 for the three term school year.

The Layout Editor supervises all aspects of layout and design. He should be skilled in the use of the headline photo copier and have a talent for close detail work. This position pays $250 for the three term period. Also paying $250 is the Sports Editor position. The Sports Editor is in charge of producing all sports copy and photographs. He should be interested in sports, a capable writer, and able to maintain a close liason with the LBCC coaching staff.

The Advertising Manager is not salaried, but is paid a commission of twenty-five per cent on all advertising revenue. He is responsible for selling and producing ads, keeping accurate records, and billing customers.

Applications for any of these positions should be made in writing to the Publications Board and delivered to Mr. Ken Cheney, advisor to THE COMMUTER, in T-13. Applications should reflect the interest and ability of the applicant. Selections will be made at the Publications Board Meeting at 1:00 p.m. on Thursday, May 25th in the College Center Conference Room. Applicants should be available at that time for interview.

Scott assumes office at OCCA convention

May 11, 12 and 13 were the days for the third and final Oregon Community College Association (OCCA) convention.

Just for background information, the OCCA is composed of five subdivisions: 1) OCCSA, Oregon Community College Student Association 2) OCCFA, Oregon Community College Faculty Association 3) OCCBA, OCC - Board Association 4) OCCCA, OCC - Classified Association 5) OCCAA, OCC - Administration Association. The combined organization meet together three times yearly. Each subdivision meets according to need.

LBCC students who attended this convention were Harvey Scott, new OCCSA President; Mary Huber, Delegate spokeswoman; Steve Smith, LBCC Student Government; Ellen Hill, Outgoing OCCSA Treasurer; Steve Hurlbert, LBCC Student Government; Dorothy Christ-man, LBCC Student Government; Steve Parker, Collegiate Veterans.

In an interview with Harvey Scott, prior to the convention, it was stated that the purpose of this convention was "to vote on all of the resolutions passed by each section (OCCSA, OCCFA, OCCCA, etc.) during the current year." He told THE COMMUTER that "There are 16 resolutions" and he stressed their importance to LBCC and all community colleges in Oregon.

Scott also said that he would "take office" (as OCCSA President) at the last section meeting of this convention.

For further information on OCCSA or the entire OCCA, Harvey Scott urges any interested persons to talk to him. He will be more than happy to answer any questions.

The complete follow-up of the OCCA convention will be in the next issue of THE COMMUTER.

Demonstration or mob?

Recent campus unrest draws our attention once again to American involvement in Vietnam. Student reaction to Nixon's most recent war tactic has been tremendous. At least to the media it looks that way.

Unfortunately, a large amount of the unruly crowds are made up of half interested, curious bystanders.

Tuesday evening, May 9, I attended a Corvallis City Budget meeting along with about 70 other people, to ask the City Council to consider taking a political stand on the war in Vietnam.

It was hoped that the council would start a wave of dissatisfaction. It was hoped that the council would start a wave of dissatisfaction that would reach the White House.

However, it was not the meeting that impressed me nor did I come away with renewed faith that we could stop the war in Vietnam. Instead, I came away half marveling and half disgusted with the power of mob psychology. Never before had I seen anything so sad as this crowd.

Half of the people had joined the march to the meeting because they saw action and wanted to join it. Most of these people didn't even know what the march was about.

At the meeting, the crowd reacted typically. When they were pleased by an orator's semantics they clapped, when they were displeased they heckled. It reminded me of an unplanned Saturday afternoon matinee.

Some of the speakers that were chosen to represent the crowd (or that chose themselves to represent the crowd) used outrageous logic and spiteful rhetoric to only antagonize the council men.

There was one man representing the crowd that handled himself well and listening to what the councilmen had to say.

I don't want a war in Vietnam. I don't like fighting, killing, or bombs, but the students are never going to stop a war if they go about it in the way that I witnessed last Tuesday.

Unfortunately, I'm not even sure if the petitions that Linn-Benton students signed Wednesday, May 10, will affect our government.

J.H.

Letters reviewed

To the Editor:

This is in reference to the editorial page(s) of the May 1 issue. I would like to say that you turned out another outstanding editorial Jean. It will probably bring in as many letters of response as the April 24 issue.

One thing which I really liked was the joke sections of your editorial page(s), the sections which I am referring to were written by our loyal student Helena M., outstanding 2nd V.P. Mary H., and extremely busy Chris B. These three letters were fun to read. I would like to thank each one of them.

Helena, your letter was great, the accusations on Jean and her friends were outstanding. You should know for sure before you call someone a thief though. I happen to be one of Jean's friends.

Mary, I won't say much about yours because you're trying to go out of office with a smash and it looks as though you're doing well at it.

Chris, your letter was ridiculous. Why take up a half a page full of garbage to tell us that you're upset because you're not the editor and would like to have Jean's job. I'm sure you can find something else to do. I'm also sure that Jim liked your letter also.

To the people who wrote letters in support of the April 24 editorial I would like to shake your hand.

Thanks

To the Editor:

I would like to thank all those who in yesterday's election supported our school, giving special thanks to Bob Miller and Mary Huber who gave of themselves, their total time and energy in getting our budget passed.

I feel that it was because of the support of the students that we were able to successfully pass our budget. Again Thank You.

LONG & SHORT

By SKIP COLLINS

Have you ever sat down and really thought about how much it would cost your family if you died? Being a practical person, I do consider these things! I believe that a considerate person should take steps to help in the event that he might depart. Life insurance is one way, but it isn't what I am thinking about.

For example, the casket. Why not start now and build your own? Think of the money you could save your family.

But then the question arises as to what you do with it when you finish it. It wouldn't be considered very good taste to use it as a coffee table in your living room or a stool in your breakfast nook.

Therefore, I might suggest the sale of your bed and the use of your homemade coffin for the same purpose. Think of the possibilities! You could build in all the modern conveniences! AM-FM radio, stereo tape deck, a small ice box, maybe even a little hot plate.

It would also be a great way to get rid of burglars. First you should make sure that the hinges squeak. Now, picture this; a burglar slowly slides the window open and softly slips into the dark bedroom where you are sleeping within your casket. He begins to slowly skulk around the room, looking for items to steal. You hear him bump something and listen carefully.

Now, there are two things you can do. You could call the police on your built in phone or you could merely open the lid, slowly and steadily.

There are only two dangers involved in the latter suggestion. 1) You might wake the neighbors with the criminals blood curdling scream as he dives through a closed door into a closet. 2) You might have to re place a broken door or two . . . or three.

Therefore, I suggest you read "Long and Short" next week for more ways to discourage burglars.

News briefs

Attention vets

Saturday, May 20, the first — in what is to be an annual event — LBCC Collegiate Veterans Picnic will be held at the Northwest area of Avery Park in Corvallis, beginning at noon. Ten cent hot dogs and beverage tickets will be available with popcorn. The tickets are also redeemable on valuable door prizes.

Mock elections

Anyone 18 and over may place their votes in the mock presidential election which is taking place Monday and Tuesday (May 15 and 16) in the College Center. Such elections have been held in a number of other colleges throughout the state.

GI forum

If you're a G.I. who is having difficulties finding a job or getting a loan or receiving benefits, come to the open forum at 7 p.m., May 16 (Tuesday). Representatives of the state employment service will be there to answer any questions concerning the rights and assistance of veterans. To quote Dr. Adams: "This program is designed to help you, the veteran. If you have a problem, we want to hear about it." So, bring your voice to the Albany Chamber of Commerce, 435 West First Street, Tuesday evening.

Draft counseling

The Draft Counseling Center of Corvallis will send out a representative by the name of Marilyn Mahan. She has been on campus before, as last term when she was here, several weeks running. She stopped, however, as interest was waning. But now, the Center feels that there is a revival in interest and it would be profitable to send a representative to answer all questions pertaining to serving in the armed services. Ms. Mahan will be on campus, in the College Foyer, from 9 a.m. - 3 p.m. May 17 and 18 (Wednesday and Thursday).

Small fire

The car belonging to Ms. Dallas Ludal caught fire after the carburetor back-fired Friday, May 5 at approximately 3 p.m. The hood of her car, a Ford Galaxy, is somewhat scorched. Fortunately, however, what damage was done is repairable, as the wire system is shot and little more. The fire was put out by Mr. Plumlee and a few others who were present. They continued to watch the car rather carefully for awhile in the fear that it might catch fire again and this time explode.

Unique "Biology on Wheels" offered

By GARY LONIEN

If, during the summer months, you should see Linn-Benton students, guided by Biology teacher Bob Ross and a watchful assistant instructor, scrambling over beaches, sand dunes, tide pools and other areas, with their cameras clicking madly all the while, you need not fret that they have lost their senses. They are merely taking part in one of the most unique programs ever offered at LBCC. "Biology on Wheels" can provide the student with an excellent opportunity to take their knowledge into the field and observe unusual biological phenomena.

Class hours for this program shall be 8 until noon, with occasional afternoon sessions. This shall consist of lectures, labs and discussions, along with some local field trips.

There are several week-long field trips tentatively planned for the June 19th to August 25th class. Two of these excursions shall center around the Malheur National Wildlife Refuge in Eastern Oregon. In addition, a camp-out trip is planned along the crest of the Cascade Range to observe the phenomena there. Last, but not least, a coastal tour is scheduled in order to take a closer look at the bays, sand dunes, beaches, and tide pools which naturally abound in that region.

Dormitory facilities are available for all of the trips excluding the coastal excursion. Students are cautioned however, that if they wish to register for this rigorous program (beginning May 23), that they must have all of the following abilities; they must read reasonably well, work closely in team-learning situations, cooperate as active participants, be self-motivated, and most important, be able to follow directions.

Other requirements are that the student be in good health (students having intractable physical handicaps are advised against enrollment), they must have a health insurance policy (LBCC offers a student health insurance program), they must have their application for admission and transcripts in the Linn-Benton Admissions Office May 23 (new students must arrange a conference with a counselor), and finally, the student must enroll for all twelve credits of the course (Bio 101, 102, 103).

Students are encouraged to bring their camera equipment along on these trips. Mr. Ross, as well as being a distinguished Biology teacher is also an avid nature photography buff. He will give Photography lessons to those students interested in photographing the many varied life and land forms that will be seen on their field trips.

The fees shall be the standard tuition rates, plus $92.00 for transportation, food, and lodging.

An information session is scheduled Monday evening, May 22, 7 p.m. at the Linn County Courthouse basement (west end) in Albany, Oregon. Students are encouraged to bring their parents.

The class is restricted to 24 students on a first come, first served basis.

Creative writing wanted

On June 5, THE COMMUTER will print its second annual Literary issue. The contents of the issue will be student and faculty contributions. All poems, short stories, and essays will be accepted through May 29. Photographs will also be printed if they are received by May 24. Each contribution should be no more than two and one-half pages of double spaced, typed material. Literature and photographs can be turned into T 12 between 9:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. All photographs can be returned and a negative should accompany the photo if possible.

LBCC chorus sings Sunday

On May 21st, this coming Sunday, the LBCC Concert and Swing Choirs will proudly make their first individual public appearance. The concert will take place at Umatilla and 28th Street in the First United Methodist Church at 3:00 in the afternoon.

The Swing Choir will feature such songs as the solo "I Don't Know How To Love Him" from the rock opera "Jesus Christ Super Star," and their own arrangement of "Joy To The World" by the Three Dog Night. The Concert Choir will give forth with sounds extending from the Renaissance Period to Contemporary Times.

Admission is free.

'Runners win 1st of playoff tiffs

Since the Mt. Hood Saints won't be meeting Linn-Benton Roadrunners this year in the regionals (if the 'Runners win the state tournament) they'll probably meet a very strong Treasure Valley Community College.

The Saints moved in to a new alliance with the Northwest Community College Conference in order to have more teams to play football with (also basketball). Since the break was with the OCCAA this also meant severing ties with the National Junior College Athletic Association.

Even though the Saints won't be meeting the 'Runners in state or regional tournament, they did meet on Tuesday. The Roadrunners came out on the low end of the score for the second time as they were defeated 6-2.

The Linn-Benton nine substituted as there were three pitches used. Starter Tom Martell was tabbed with the loss.

This ran the 'Runners record to 26-9, going into the state tournament.

Teams in this year's state finals were LBCC, SWOCC of the Southern division and Clackamas along with Clatsop C.C. of the Northern division.

Hopefully for the Roadrunner's next stop will be the Regionals, and even more hopefully they will win the National Championships at Grand Junction, Colorado.

Linn-Benton Roadrunners, led by Bill Hambrick's 3 run homer in the fourth inning, took a 13-3 score in the first round in the ball game, over Clatsop C.C.

Winner Mike Godfrey helped his own cause with a 2 run double in the third inning.

Also, while the state tournament was going on, the OCCAA all-star team was presented. From LBCC, on first team were; Catcher Dan Lipsey batting .346, Tom Martell with 5 wins, 2 losses and Terry Cornutt who repeated from last year, 6 wins, 1 loss, with a 1.78 and 2.87 earned run average, respectively.

Dennis Coon and Tim Faville batting .275 and .337 made honorable mentions. Ron Wolfe utility batting .342, Jim Davidson, Bill Hambrick, and Rick George batting .409, .353, .314 respectively made honorable mention also.

Summer schedule available

Summer schedules are now available at the counseling office according to Bob Talbott, Director of Counseling. Counselors are available to assist students in planning summer programs. Appointments should be made in advance, Talbott said.

Since 1790

Summertime is bicycle time

Summer is nearly here! That means, among other things, that Bicycles are coming back in full swing.

Everyone knows just about everything one has to know about bicycle riding, but not too many people know about the past history of bicycle riding.

The first bicycle invented was the "walk-along," back in 1790. The walk-along was pushed along by the rider's feet, kind of like a kiddie car. Twenty-six years later, a German, Baron Karl Drais invented a walk-along called the draisine, which had a steering bar connected to the front wheel. In 1818, England got its first taste of the bicycle. They were called hobby horses, dandy horses, and swift walkers.

The French got into the act in 1860. Ernest Michaux, a French Locksmith, invented a bicycle with pedals attached to the front wheel. The first patent on a bicycle was given to Pierre Lallement, another Frenchman in 1866.

In England around 1873, the high-wheeler was invented. It had the first all-metal frame and the front wheel was almost as tall as a man, while the back wheel was very small. During the next ten years, various improvements were made in the bicycle, such as rubber tires, ball bearings for wheels, coaster brakes, cushion saddles, and handlebars that could be adjusted for a riders comfort.

The bicycle was in its greatest use in the United States from 1889 until about 1900. Only until recently, does the bicycle appear to be a coming fad.

Golf meet scheduled

An announcement made Thursday by Mr. Kimpton stated that an intermural golf tournament will be held at the Albany Golf Course.

All the golf matches are 18 holes and will be scored by the Callaway System.

All full time students at Linn-Benton are eligible. Sign up in either Mr. Kimpton's office or at the Albany Golf Course.

Graduating list released

The following students are on the graduation elect list for the 1972 school year. They compose the class of 1972. If you are planning to graduate on June 9, and your name does not appear on this graduation roster, please contact the Dean of Students office.
