

Full-Time Faculty Report

March 21, 2018

Randy Falk – Health and Human Performance Faculty and Athletic Director – reports that the men’s basketball team successfully competed at the NWAC Championships held in Everett, Washington, March 10 and 11. The team defeated Edmonds, the number 3 seed from the Northern division, 81-72 on Saturday: following that was a win, 84-75 on Sunday, over Walla Walla, the number one seed from the Eastern division. They will continue their run to the Championship round against Peninsula, the number 2 seed from the Northern division, on Saturday, March 17 at 2:00 in Everett, Washington. With a win over Peninsula, the Roadrunners would play the winner of the Portland-North Idaho match-up for the NWAC Championship title on Sunday, March 18, at 2:30. Fan participation is always welcome, see you in person or on the NWAC site!

Rick Klampe and Clay Weber – Faculty Agricultural Sciences and Livestock Judging Team Coaches – had phenomenal contests at the Fresno State Fair and the Colorado Stat Ram Classic. Led by Clay Weber, the Fresno team placed first in overall and first in beef, sheep, swine and reasons. Klampe led the Colorado team which also placed first overall, and first in beef, sheep, goats and swine. One of the most impressive tidbits is that both teams competed and won at different sites on the same day!

Barry Payton – Heavy Equipment Diesel Faculty – would like to invite the board and any interested parties to visit the ATTC in April and May. April 13 and 14 is the annual Open House show casing the facility and equipment. May 19, is Dyno Day, a benefit activity for the Diesel Department. The flyers are linked below:

Chareane Wimbley-Gouveia, – Learning Center Faculty – is pleased to host the end of the term faculty development and professional learning options facilitated by AVID HE (Achievement Via Individual Determination for Higher Education) and organized by Jess Winans, Learning Innovation Center faculty. The Learning Center views these comprehensive professional development opportunities as important to raise Learning Center staff skills in facilitating student success. Topics scheduled for March 22 and March 23 include Academic Reading, Inquiry and Focused Note Taking, and will address engagement issues that faculty observe in the classroom.

Liz Pearce – Education and Child and Family Studies Faculty – would like to share that the ED/CFS department is midway through the second year of its fully developed Human Services program which includes an AS that transfers directly to OSU. Human Services is a broadly defined helping profession that addresses human needs through an interdisciplinary knowledge base. It is an emerging field that is rapidly changing and growing. We are proud to say that our second class of 13 practicum students will be working in the following locations spring term:

- ABC House (works with child abuse victims and their families)
- CASA (Court Appointed Special Advocates) Voices for Children
- Casa Latinos Unidos
- Compassion First (works with survivors of sex trafficking)
- Family Tree Relief Nursery
- Three high schools (Counseling and Developmental Education departments)
- Jackson Street Youth Services
- JOBS program (self-sufficiency program)
- Oak Creek Youth Authority
