

College faces cutbacks unless tax base passes: Coady

By Steve Irvin
Staff Writer

Increased enrollment limits, elimination of some programs, and staff reductions are among the likely consequences if the upcoming tax base election fails to provide increased funding for LBCC.

In a recent press conference, LBCC Board Chairman Larry Coady said the new tax base being sought in next May's primary is crucial if LBCC is to maintain its current level of service. He said that although cutting programs has adverse effects, it may come to that eventually.

The board has just begun to plan for a possible failure of the tax base. According to Coady, marginal programs may be eliminated to make surviving ones better.

However, Coady said he would "fight to the bitter end" to keep from cutting programs.

The board has not yet identified any specific programs as being marginal, Coady said.

One option would be to limit the college to primarily a vocational school. Coady said that although the board is against this, vocational education has priority.

Despite the fact that transfer courses are less costly, Coady said vocational courses create jobs and are what community colleges are designed to provide.

Enrollment will continue to be handled, as it was fall term, on a first-come, first-served basis, according to Coady.

Students in Linn and Benton counties are given first priority, followed by students from outside counties and out-of-state students.

Coady said that although the LBCC teaching staff is paid less than at other community colleges, the number of staff members may have to be cut back to compensate for a lack of funds resulting in failure of the new tax base and subsequent special levies.

The ultimate answer, Coady said, lies with a new tax base. If this base does not pass, a tax levy on the A and B ballots will be offered to the voters, and possibly another tax base request next November.

It will be "extremely difficult" to pass the tax base, Coady conceded. A strong campaign is needed to keep LBCC in the voter's mind, he added.

Voters in the "educationally oriented community" of Corvallis will be encouraged to vote, Coady said, adding that the majority of the voters in this area traditionally support the college's tax requests.

Coady said most of the opposition to LBCC levies comes from voters living in Lebanon, Sweet Home and rural areas.

Coady also said that tuition will be raised next fall, but predicted it would still bring in no more than 15 to 20 percent of the total operating budget.

According to Coady, the board is unanimous about maintaining sports programs at LBCC as long as they are self-supporting.

Cards now available for winter registration

By Maggi Gibson
Staff Writer

As many as 30 students per hour will be processed during winter term registration through the use of registration appointment cards.

According to Jon Carnahan, Director of Admissions and Registrar, alphabetical registration Dec. 7 through 10 will be organized to speed up the procedure.

Because of complaints of long lines and time-consuming delays under the old first-in-line, first-to-register system, a new method was needed, he said. The alphabetical breakdown was introduced to LBCC's registration process in the Winter of 1980, and has been refined to a relatively smooth procedure since then. "We have had nothing but positive reports," said Carnahan.

Appointment cards are available this week in the Registrar's Office in Takena Hall, allotting half hour intervals from 8:30 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. for each student to register.

Students who have been previously admitted on a full-time basis and are enrolled this term may register by appointment Dec. 7 through 10. Appointment days will be assigned according to an alphabetical breakdown previously arranged by the Registrar's Office.

Students with names beginning with C-H will need to arrange appointments on Dec. 7, I-N on Dec. 8, O-T on Dec. 9 and U-B on Dec. 10.

Continuing and new part-time students will begin registration on Dec. 14.

Carnahan estimated students will be able to finish the registration process within an hour of their arrival, a significant reduction from the two-to-three-hour waits common in past years.

Veterans advised to complete forms early, avoid 'W' grades

By Doug Schwartz
Staff Writer

GI Bill recipients are urged to complete their compliance check prior to registration, according to LBCC Veteran's Affairs Coordinator Al Barrios.

Barrios suggested that student veterans get their compliance and registration forms reviewed this week to speed up registration, which begins Dec. 7.

Packets containing compliance and registration forms are available in Takena Hall, and processing will begin Nov. 30.

The Veteran's Office will be open special hours this week to help students with registration — from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. Friday; and from 1 to 4 p.m. Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

Barrios also warned veteran's of the danger of being charged with overpayment of benefits resulting from an Instructor Withdrawal (W) grade.

Due to the way LBCC handles W grades, the Veteran's Administration cannot determine the attendance record of the student and therefore assumes the student did not attend any classes, Barrios said.

Overpayment is assumed if the course in which the W was given was counted toward the student's program, and if omission of the course resulted in the lowering of the student's enrollment status, Barrios said. Students are allowed appeal, but if they lose they may be forced to repay a portion of their benefits.

The Veteran's Affairs office is in Takena Hall, ext. 104 and 375.

A member of the local Gideon Society hands out a Bible to a passer-by on campus Nov. 18. The project was sponsored by the Christians on Campus Club, an organization that has been with LBCC for years. According to Kevin Mc-

Clenahan, a member of the club, more information and material are available to those who want it. The club meets on Wednesday from 12-1pm in the Willamette Room, or the club's advisor, Bob Ross, can be reached at ext. 354.

Editorial

Expression of activism must preserve choices

What is "truth"?

Is it simply sincerity in speech, actions, or character?

Can it be measured by the genuineness of a person's expression of a feeling of belief?

The body of knowledge, events and facts that make up "man's" perception of the universe can be quite different from what is actually in existence.

The direction in life for some people, whether intuitively or logically guided, is not necessarily a judgement on their part that accords with the reality held by others.

Truth is an idea or concept that is transcendent of a single vision.

Recently LBCC's Christians on Campus club invited the members of the local Gideon's organization to the campus with the purpose of sharing their beliefs with others who might be interested. The group set up tables around the campus to pass out copies of the New Testament to passers-by.

According to the college's Manual on Use of Facilities, student organizations and clubs have the right to sponsor such activities. They may participate and encourage the dissemination of information about points of view — as long as the right of free expression is adhered to. And these efforts must not disrupt usual campus activities or advocate unlawful actions.

Unfortunately, the Gideon's, were "stepping on toes" in the manner in which they gave away these Bibles.

They are entitled to their beliefs and commitments, as are the "Christians on Campus group," a welcome example of activism.

But along with the freedom of speech, press, and religion put forth by the First Amendment, an equal place must be left for "Freedom of Choice."

A democracy cannot function without a balanced presentation of both sides to any issue in question; society must allow for different opinions to be aired in order to ensure valid judgements.

Refusing a Bible with a polite "no thank you" is not a condemnation of Christ, Christianity, God or religion. It is merely an individual exercising his right to freedom of choice and belief.

The Gideon's presence would have been enough. However, some were too insistent, walking after passers-by who were trying to steer clear of their tables. At some locations, it was difficult for disinterested students to avoid them.

The Gideon's presence would have been enough in itself to stop many a curious passer-by.

But their blithe insistence was disconcerting and even offensive to those of different faiths and belief structures.

Colleges are where the foundations of free thought and academic expression are sprouted and nurtured in often malleable minds of the young or inquiring.

It is right to express your beliefs and opinions on campus. It is wrong to negate another's freedom of choice in the process.

Story placement brings complaint

I am dismayed and disappointed with the location of the article on the abortion hearing in the Nov. 18, 1981, Commuter.

The abortion issue bears great impact on our society for opponents and advocates alike. The Senate Judiciary Subcommittee hearing is the first step toward the bill's outcome. Due to this, the significance of this article is paramount.

Because of the bill's vital nature, it deserves more attention than sports page coverage. I think the story should have been placed in an area that highlights its importance, not buried in ads on page seven.

Christmas briefs

Annual Potter's Guild sale next week

The LBCC Potter's Guild will hold its sixth annual Christmas sale in the College Center Commons, Dec. 9 through Dec. 10.

The sale will feature cups, bowls, teapots and large pieces, such as vases and platters, all made on campus by students and faculty.

Prices in the sale will be kept as low as possible, ranging from $2 to $50, according to instructor Judy Mason.

Students have been working on pottery for this sale since September, and have gathered over 400 functional and artistic pieces for the sale.

Children's Christmas party Saturday

LBCC will host its annual Children's Christmas Party Sat., 1 to 4 p.m.

The Associated Students of LBCC and members of the Retired Senior Volunteer Program are inviting all area children and their parents to the Commons for an afternoon of activities, including cookie decorating, a magic show, Yule stories, letter-writing to Santa Claus and pictures with Santa.

Free babysitting will be provided for children under two.

All children must be accompanied by an adult. The party is free, but donations of canned goods to be distributed to needy families in Linn and Benton counties will be accepted.

Students to paint windows

The First Annual Fabulous Window-Painting Contest sponsored by the Student Organizations Office, will be held Thursday and Friday in the Commons. Clubs, organizations and individuals will compete for prizes and trophies.

All supplies and sign-up sheets are available in the Student Organizations Office, CC-213.

Winners will be announced at the Tree Decorating Party, which starts at 3 p.m. Friday. Refreshments will be served.

For more information, call Student Organizations at ext. 150.

Santa outfits for rent

The LBCC Campus and Community Services Office now has available for rent complete Santa Clause outfits.

The rental charge is $10 per 24-hour period, which is used to help recoup original cost as well as general maintenance.

The suits are available on a first-come, first-served basis and can be reserved through the Campus and Community Services office, ext. 101.

Art Center plans market

The Corvallis Arts Center's Annual Christmas Craft Market will be held Dec. 5 and 6 at the Corvallis Women's Club Building, 117 NW 7th St.

Over 30 artists will be displaying crafts ranging from Christmas wreaths to handwoven clothing and jewelry. Besides craft booths, the Center will have a holiday food booth. The annual Christmas tree will also be exhibited with hand-made Christmas ornaments created by local artists.

Hours for the sale are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday and noon to 5 p.m. on Sunday. For more information call the center at 754-1551.

Commons scene of crafts fair

A Christmas Crafts Fair will be held in the LBCC Commons Saturday, Dec. 12, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Local artists, hobbyists and crafts persons will offer their wares for sale.

Those interested in obtaining a table in the Commons for this event should contact the Student Organizations Office, ext. 150.

'Startling Stories' to be told as readers' theatre opens

By Paula Matthiesen
Staff Writer

For just a moment, step forward-in time. Walk, wide-eyed, into the unknown, following Jane Donovan into "Startling Stories, Wondrous Worlds."

The collection of science fiction short stories will be presented Dec. 4, 5, 11 and 12 at 8:15 p.m. in The Loft (F202).

Donovan, director of the production, said that even though it is "readers' theatre," the show will be complete with sets, lighting and costumes. But in the readers' theatre tradition, it will retain the narrative form.

The audience, said Donovan, will be transported through a time-tunnel into an evening filled with suspense, drama and comedy.

Five short stories have been combined to show the variety in the spectrum of science fiction.

"Tomorrow and Tomorrow and Tomorrow" by Kurt Vonnegut deals with what the future may hold in an over-populated world.

"The Billion Faces of God" by Arthur C. Clark is a story of computers. "Along the Scenic Route" by Harlan Ellison provides a different look at another future time on Earth.

Damon Knight's "To Serve Man" brings visitors from another world, while Ray Bradbury's "All Summer and A Day" gives us a glimpse of life on Venus.

The production will be staged in horse-shoe fashion, with the audience seated on three sides.

The focus of the evening will be on the literature, although special attention has been given to the visual element in the production. Slide projections and music are among the mood-setting effects that will be used.

Donovan added, however, that "a lot of the mood is set with suggestion, to get peoples' minds working."

Tickets for the production are $2, and are available at French's Jewelers, The Inkwell, the LBCC Lebanon and Sweet Home Centers, the Campus and Community Services Office, and at the door.

Chicago firm to buy back texts, other books

In an effort to save time in the book buy-back procedure, the LBCC Bookstore has invited a Chicago book buying firm to campus to purchase texts and other books from students this term.

The firm, Jobbers Inc., will purchase not only used textbooks, but also any other books listed in their national catalog.

Although students will not see a change in the price paid for used books or the price charged for used books in the Bookstore, they will find faster service, no identification requirements, and will get cash for their books; according to bookstore coordinator Clarice Scheffler.

"Jobbers is one of the biggest book-buying companies in the nation," said Scheffler. "This system is new to LBCC but hopefully if this runs smoothly it will save the bookstore staff a lot of time and effort previously spent on the book-buying and cataloging."

At the end of each book-buying day Scheffler will go over a purchase list for LBCC and buy from Jobbers the books it needs.

The bookstore will be buying back books from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Friday Dec. 11 and Monday through Friday, Dec. 14-18.

In a related matter, the Bookstore will no longer be open Wednesday or Thursday evenings due to lack of sales.

Blown glass display

An exhibit of blown glass by Dr. Robert Fritz is now on display through Dec. 18 in the Humanities Gallery at Linn-Benton Community College.

The Fritz exhibit includes three sculptures, functional forms and photographs of the glass-blowing process by David Hubka, formerly of Albany.

Fritz, a pioneer in the 1960s Studio Glass Movement in the United States, started the first glass art program in the West at San Jose State University, where he continues to teach.

The exhibit is open to the public free of charge from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays. The gallery is located in the foyer of the Humanities and Social Sciences Building, 6500 SW Pacific Blvd., Albany. For additional information, contact Dorothy Matthews, Gallery Coordinator, 929-6745.

The LBCC Music Club will present two concerts Wed. Dec. 9. The first will be from 11:30am-1pm in the Aiseal/Calapooia Room and features solo artists and duets.

Admission is free.

The second concert will be from 3:30-5:30pm in Forum 104. The show will feature the Troy-Christensen Jazz Sextet and the rock 'n' roll band Riker.

There is a 50 cents cover charge for the second concert. Proceeds will go to the LBCC Music Club.

Journalist pans racism

By Doug Otto
Staff Writer

There is no place to escape racism, especially in South Africa, according to exiled South African journalist Dumisani Kumalo.

Kumalo told an Oregon State University audience of about 100 people that the South African government is the most repressive, racist government in the world. The government is run by the whites for the whites, he said, and the blacks and "coloreds" are merely "tools for the white man."

Kumalo's speech, delivered at OSU's MU East Forum Nov. 18, was sponsored by The African Student Association of OSU.

"Apartheid" means separated, he said, and "everything is separated" in South Africa.

For example, Kumalo asked the audience to suppose a white man was driving his car south on a road and a black man was driving his car north on the same road and there was a head-on collision in which both men were hurt. Two ambulances would have to be called, Kumalo said: one for the white man and one for the black man.

The apartheid system also applies to education, employment and religions.

Kumalo said he fled South Africa in 1977 because of police harassment over his involvement in the Union of Black Journalists. Since then he has been working for the American Committee on Africa, writing reports for United States newspapers and authoring several articles and book reviews. His autobiography about his experiences under apartheid will be published soon.

The Reagan Administration is "very insensitive," to what is happening in South Africa, Kumalo said, adding that should be no surprise. "Reagan is insensitive to what is happening in America," he said.

The South African government has made it impossible not to be racist. They have made it a crime for a black person to sit on a bench or walk through an entrance labeled "for whites only."

"It is the only country in the world that has a race classification board," said Kumalo. This board puts people into four basic racial groups based on appearance.

There are approximately 4.5 million whites, 2.5 million "colored" people, 800,000 East Indians, and 22 million Africans in South Africa. "Colored" is the classification given to people of mixed black and white heritage.

"I would be lying to you if I said I see changes in South Africa without bloodshed," said Kumalo.

THERE'S ONE PLACE TO GET $15,200 FOR COLLEGE IN JUST TWO YEARS.

Soon you'll have your associate's degree. And if you're thinking of continuing your education, you know just how expensive that will be.

But consider the Army. In the Army, if you participate in the Veterans' Educational Assistance Program (VEAP), you can accumulate $15,200 for college in just two years.

That's significant for two reasons. Obviously, that's a lot of money. But what you may not have realized is that two years is the shortest military enlistment available.

VEAP is a great way to make it on your own. Since it's not a loan, you won't need a co-signer or collateral. And you'll never have to worry about making payments after graduation.

It's strictly a savings program, and the money is all yours for school.

VEAP is surprisingly simple. If you save between $25 and $100 each month while you're in the Army, the government will match your savings two-for-one. And, on top of that, you might even qualify for the exclusive Army education incentive of $8,000.

And remember, in just two years, you'll be back in school.

Serve your country as you serve yourself. Call 800-421-4422. In California, call 800-252-0011. Alaska and Hawaii, 800-423-2244. Better yet, look in the Yellow Pages under "Recruiting."

Broken toys await welder's torch.

Welders repair toys for holiday gifts

By Steve Irvin
Staff Writer

The student chapter of the American Welding Society at LBCC is once again repairing metal toys for underprivileged children in Linn and Benton counties.

According to Ed Stewart, the program's founder, the toy repair has been done annually since 1971-72, before the present campus was even built.

The broken toys are received from various sources, such as the welfare department and individuals and are repaired by the gas welding classes during class time.

Stewart said the auto-body shop also donated class time to paint any toys that need repainting.

The repaired toys are then turned over to the State Adult and Family Services office, where they are distributed to needy children.

In the past, the toys were only distributed in the Linn county area, but this year they will be split between Linn and Benton counties.

The toy repair project is very rewarding, Stewart said. Not only are the welding students doing a good deed, but they are also receiving needed experience with shop projects.

Merchants in the area are "very helpful" when it comes to donating parts needed to make the repairs, Stewart said.

The welding classes have already received several toys for repair, and begin repairing them this week. The repairs will go on until the end of the term.

Students who wish to donate damaged metal toys should contact the welding shop at ext. 129 to make arrangements for pick up or delivery.

LBCC students in Sweet Home may take their toys to the home of Ed and Sandy Seibler, 2984 Kalmia Court, (behind Hawthorne School), or call 367-5288.

Although any metal toys will be accepted, Stewart said tricycles, small bikes, wagons and similar small children's toys are preferred.

Choir, jazz groups plan concerts

Two concerts will be held on the Linn-Benton Community College campus this week.

On Thursday, Dec. 3, the 30-member LBCC Concert Choir, directed by Hal Eastburn, presents "Christmas Classic," featuring the litanies "Titaniae de Beatra Virgine" by Mozart. The program also includes selections from Brahms, Stravinsky, Rutter, Luboff and Haydn.

"Christmas Classic" will be held at The Theatre in Takena Hall at 8 p.m.

"The Jazz Season" concert, including vocal and instrumental ensembles, will be held at The Theatre Sunday, Dec. 6, at 3 p.m.

The 20-piece LBCC Jazz Ensemble, directed by Gary Ruppert, will play pieces from the libraries of the Buddy Rich Band, Les Hooper, Ray Brown and others.

Also featured in Sunday's concert is LBCC's 14-member jazz singing group, Jazz Scat, directed by Eastburn. Featured songs include, "I'm Falling in Love With You," "Dance to the Music," "Pilot of the Airwaves," "Yesterday," "Doctor Jazz" and "Laugh Lady Clown," with arrangements by Steve Powell, Ken Krantz and Kirby Shaw.

Admission to each concert is $1 at the door.

Carpentry students seek projects

First-year carpentry students in the College's Construction Technology Program will soon be ready to take on small off-campus remodeling projects within 10 miles of LBCC.

The owner must provide the building permit and materials, and the students will provide the labor and expertise, according to Harry Armstrong, LBCC construction technology instructor.

Armstrong added that first-year cabinetmaking students also are looking for cabinet-building projects.

Anyone interested in providing projects for either the carpentry or cabinet-making students should call Armstrong at ext. 136.

'Women in Art' topic of talk

"Women in Art" is the topic of an evening lecture and slide presentation sponsored by the Corvallis Arts Center on Thursday evening, Dec. 3, at 7:30 p.m.

Katherine Gorham of Eugene will discuss women as artists and images of women in art.

Gorham is an active artist and researcher and has exhibited and lectured at universities in both Oregon and Washington. She is currently involved with the Center for the Sociological Study of Women at the University of Oregon.

The presentation will be held in the main gallery at the Corvallis Arts Center. Admission is $2 for Arts Center members and $2.50 for non-members.

Graphics exhibit opens in Corvallis

Marson Graphics, specialists in original etchings, woodcuts, lithographs and serigraphs, will be co-sponsoring a two-day exhibit, Dec. 7 and 8 at the Corvallis Arts Center, 700 S.W. Madison Street.

Featured will be works by Chagall, Daumier, Fantin-Latour, Rouault, Whistler and other contemporary artists.

The collection is affordably priced with many prints beginning at only $5. The prints will be shown informally in portfolios which the public is welcome to browse through. A representative will be present to answer any questions about various work or artists.

Hours for the sale are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. both days.

Work study jobs available over break

Work study students interested in working through the Winter Term break should contact the Financial Aids Office.

Some departments will be providing jobs through the break, enabling work study students to earn up to eight hours per day in some cases, according to the Financial Aids Office.

The students must be returning Winter Term, and be finished with Fall Term exams.

The maximum amount of work-study funds has been upped to $1,900 from $1,700 per student per year, although the top ceiling is accorded only to qualified work study applicants.

Students with questions concerning work study aid are urged to contact Al Barrios or Rita Lambert in Takena Hall, or call ext. 104.

Men whip Willamette,

By Steve Irvin
Staff Writer

The LBCC men's basketball team was victorious in their home opener Monday, defeating Willamette University's JV team 65-59.

According to Butch Kimpton, it was LBCC's tough defense that won the game. "Our defense eventually wore them down," Kimpton said.

After trailing by four at half-time, the Roadrunners tied the game at 55 with 6:30 left in the second half. A 15-foot jumper by Reggie Guyton put LBCC on top for good with 4:48 remaining.

Guyton lead the offensive attack with 19 points. Jeff Schmidt added 15 and collected a team high 109 rebounds. Dave Reddington also had 10 rebounds for the Roadrunners.

The LBCC squad split this weekend at the Lower Columbia tournament in Longview, losing to Edmonds 81-75 and defeating Olympic Community College 73-60.

Guyton again led the Roadrunners, scoring a game high 24 points against Edmonds. Reddington had 18 points and Jeff Obermeyer took down 10 rebounds in a losing effort.

Reddington led all LBCC scorers against Olympic with 14 points. He also grabbed a team high 11 rebounds.

According to Kimpton, the team is "coming along nicely," adding that he was "pretty pleased with the first three games."

The next games for LBCC will be Dec. 11-12 in the LBCC tournament. The tourney will include Western Oregon College, Pacific University's JV team, and Northwest Christian College.

Women hoopers win pair

By Jeff Longtain
Staff Writer

The LBCC women's basketball team swept a pair of non-league games over the past weekend at the Umpqua Community College tournament in Roseburg.

Friday the Roadrunner women thrashed the College of The Redwoods 90-36, as sophomore Linda Quigley and freshman Teri Reniker led the way with 16 points each.

The women hoopers shot a sizzling 55 percent from the field as they rolled up a 42-22 halftime advantage.

The Redwoods team had a tough time with the pressure style defense Coach Dave Dangler's squad was applying, shooting a dismal 37 percent as they hit only 18 of 49 shots.

The Roadrunners came back on Saturday and easily beat Lassen College 64-41. The team was led by Jefferson freshman Yolanda McGowan's 13 points and Renickers 10.

The women struggled offensively in the first half, but their defense shut down Lassen, helping the Roadrunners to a 29-19 lead at the break.

LBCC's defense was particularly impressive in the third quarter of both games as they outscored their opponents 39-6 — Lassen scored only two points and Redwoods four in that frame.

The LBCC women will host a tournament Dec. 11 and 12, with teams coming from Western Oregon State College, Pacific University and Multnomah School of the Bible.

Basketball, wrestling teams rest fate on newcomers

By Jeff Longtain
Staff Writer

Linn-Benton basketball and wrestling teams will have a tough time repeating their successful seasons of a year ago, but lots of new talent may turn an uncertain future into one of surprises.

That was the picture painted by the coaches at the recent winter sports luncheon for area journalists.

The bad news is that all of the teams have lost most of their starters of a year ago. But the good news is several newcomers promise to give the teams a new look and some new strengths this year.

Dave Dangler's women's basketball team is small but fast. Butch Kimpton's men's basketball squad features the biggest front line he's had in some time. And Bill Buckley's wrestling team, though lacking depth, boasts two or three potential division champions.

Here is a preview of the upcoming seasons for the three teams.

Women's Basketball

After losing four from last year's starting five, it would take a small miracle for the women hoopers to repeat their 27-0 season.

Dangler went on the record last year predicting his Roadrunners would win the Oregon Community College Athletic Association championship. They did.

This year, Dangler will not promise a championship but does say his team will be in the chase for the OCCAA crown.

"We should certainly be in the playoffs," said Dangler. "Our league is much stronger, but we could finish anywhere from first to fourth."

After finishing the regular season undefeated and ranked 3rd in the national junior college poll, the team ended the year on a sad note with a 64-62 overtime loss to Rick's college in the regional playoffs.

"Last season left somewhat of a bitter taste," said Dangler. "We were very disappointed we didn't go to nationals."

Of last year's starters, forwards Gene Nelson and Debbie Prince (the later now attending Western Oregon State College) are going to be tough to replace.

Both were scoring threats and provided the team with leadership that this year's team is missing, Dangler said.

Six-foot center Linda Quigley is the only starter returning from last year's squad, and Dangler will be looking for more consistent performance from his sophomore postman.

"She had a lot of ups and downs last year," said Dangler. "One night she would score 26 points and come back the next day and only score three."

Helping Quigley out on the front line will be sophomore Joelle Quisberry, a 5-10 forward who is very aggressive and physical, according to Dangler.

"She's dropped 10 to 15 pounds since last year, which has made her much quicker," Dangler said. "She's very eager and excited for the season to start, and also shows flashes of being the leader that we need."

Doing the ball-handling chores for the Roadrunner women will be Gretchen Lesh and Christy Schulze.

"Gretchen's an excellent passer, ball-handler, and shooter," said Dangler. "She has also been improving everyday."

Schulze has a history of ankle trouble. Keeping her healthy could be a key for the women hoopers.

"She's potentially the best all-around player we've had here," Dangler said. "Her passing skills are somewhat dazzling and without her things won't go quite as well for us offensively."

Other teams to beat in the OCCAA will be Chekemeta and three-time defending regional champions Umpqua.

Men's Basketball

Unlike the Roadrunner women, the men's basketball team didn't enjoy an undefeated season, though it did enjoy some success.

Coming off a 13-13 season, the Roadrunners went as far as the OCCAA league playoffs before being eliminated from post-season play.

LBCC men's basketball Coach Butch Kimpton is riding a good share of his team's outcome on return point guard Reggie Guyton.

Guyton, a 5-9 sophomore, is one of three players from Portland's Jefferson High School.

Freshmen guards Reggie Blue, 5-11, and Joseph Ware, 5-10, are the other two products the Democrats have sent to LBCC.

Kimpton said Guyton could continue his education and basketball playing on a scholarship with the abilities he has.

"Reggie should finish as one of the top scorers and assist men in the conference," said Kimpton. "His talent should attract some of the four year schools."

At this time Guyton's backcourt mate is Ware which doesn't give the Roadrunners much size in the backcourt — a concern to Kimpton.

"Our guards are small in size which could be a problem for us matching up with teams that play bigger guards," said Kimpton. On the other hand, "they're also very quick, and Joseph's jumping ability makes him capable of stuffing."

Offering some height at the guard spot is 6-1 freshman Russ Houck from Corvallis, who is the only guard with both good speed and height.

"Russ is a good defensive player and hard worker," said Kimpton. "But he has limited shooting ability."

Up front the Roadrunners have what Kimpton call the "best overall height we've had in awhile."

Two returnees from last year's team — 6-4 Dave Reddington and Alsea, who started much of last season, and 6-3 Ken Huff from West Albany — are Kimpton's two best forwards this year. But whether they'll be on the floor at the same time is hard to say.

"If I play Reddington I give up Huff's speed and finesse," said Kimpton. "On the other hand if I play Huff I give up Reddington's size and rebounding ability."

To give some more height at the forward spot are two 6-6 freshmen from local high schools: Charles Schantz, a product of South Albany, and Jeff Schmidt from Crescent Valley High School in Corvallis.

"Schantz doesn't have much speed but he's an excellent shooter," said Kimpton. "Schmidt doesn't have much finesse but he's very aggressive and probably the hardest working big man I've had here."

Holding down the center position is 6-7 sophomore Jeff Obermeyer, also from Crescent Valley.

and has worked particularly hard this fall, said Kimpton.

"Jeff is our fastest and best jumping big man," said Kimpton. He's secured a starting spot in our line-up and will be a factor for us this year."

Mt. Hood and Chemeketa are the teams to beat in the OCCAA, but don't sell the Roadrunners short, said Kimpton.

"We will be a scrambling, hustling type team," he said.

"We're going to be very competitive and have a good chance of making the playoffs again this year."

Wrestling

When the basketball players aren't running up and down the hardwood floor the wrestlers will unroll the mats and try to match the Roadrunner's second place finish in the OCCAA in 1980-81.

Living up to last year's finish could be a problem for the LBCC grapplers as they return only three wrestlers from last year's team.

Returnees are sophomores Doug Keller from South Albany, Brett Christopher of Crescent Valley, and Stan Odam from Central Linn.

Keller wrestles at the 134-pound weight class and with a year of experience now could be a factor in the OCCAA.

"He's a hard worker and has a good shot at the conference championship," said Bill Buckley, Roadrunner coach.

Christopher (150) placed fourth in the league championships a year ago and could also be a contender for a OCCAA crown.

"The 150-weight class is a very tough division," said Buckley. "If Bret, like everybody else, could avoid injury, he has a shot at the championship."

Odam finished second in the OC-

CAA last year at heavyweight compiling the most pins in the conference meet.

This year Odam has dropped a weight class and will be competing at the 190-pound division.

"I think Steve will do fine in the lower weight class and could also win a division crown," said Buckley.

One reason for Odam dropping a weight class could be incoming freshmen heavyweight Dan Demos from Harrisburg.

"Dan doesn't have much experience," said Buckley. "I think he can overcome some of that with his size (6-6, 285 lbs.), which I think could intimidate a few people."

This year's most talented grappler for the Roadrunners is freshman Bill Ensley from Sweet Home.

A year ago the Huskie wrestler compiled a 30-4 record while winning the Coast Valley League title and sixth place at the AAA state meet.

"Bill should do very well at this level," said Buckley. "I feel even though he's only a freshman he could win the OCCAA championship."

Buckley sees this year's team's lack of depth being a major problem for the Roadrunner matmen.

"We don't have a lot of numbers this year," said the coach. "So we must avoid injuries or they could become very costly."

This year's team doesn't have depth, but is composed of some fine student-athletes.

"The average GPA is 3.3 to 3.4," said Buckley. "All of them are very hard workers and good students."

Livestock judging team places 12th at nationals

By Michelle LeMay
Staff Writer

LBCC placed 12th out of 24 teams at the national livestock judging competition in Louisville, Ken. recently.

Because LBCC had the best record on the West Coast, Coaches Burce Moos and Jim Lucas anticipated better results.

Moos said they had enough experience but lacked consistency. The team had an "off day," Moos said. "They didn't place the animals correctly."

"I thought they'd do better," agreed Lucas, adding that the team was "riding high, but fell off the merry-go-round."

One hundred and forty-five individuals competed at the North American Livestock Exhibition in Louisville.

LBCC's top performers were: Doug Keller, 4th in swine and 27th overall; Robin Willie, 63rd overall; Judy Bonebrake, 88th overall; and Colette Scheele, 106th overall.

The second week in January the team will travel to Denver to compete in their final exhibition of the year.

Both coaches say the team will be working hard in hopes of bouncing back with a stronger performance. It's the first time an LBCC team has been invited to the Denver invitational meet, which Moos called the "superbowl" of livestock judging.

'Cost efficiency' belt tightens

NEA budget cuts imperil Calyx

By Pam Cline
Staff Writer

Down through the ages women have proven themselves hardy survivalists.

Entrusted with the guardianship of a species, they give birth.

Today, women are also giving birth to ideas. They are expressing themselves through art, literature, photography and poetry.

This is one of the reasons Calyx magazine, a journal of art and literature by women, was founded in 1976, said Margarita Donnelly, Calyx's managing editor.

"We felt there was a need not only to publish, so this work would see the light of print; but more importantly, to have women's work published in relation to other women's work," Donnelly explained.

One of Calyx's goals has been to explore and appreciate the female aesthetic.

This is one way Calyx's editors hope to explore and appreciate the existence of a female aesthetic; where in there is a separate perspective in women's symbols and expression.

"Because we've done a good job, we've earned a national reputation," Donnelly said.

But Calyx has been hit hard by the recent unexpected loss of grant monies, some of which had already been earmarked, and the postal hikes. In addition, the magazine has been inundated by manuscripts, art, and other contributions waiting for the editorial review and possible acceptance.

Since its inception, Calyx was receiving 50 percent of its operating revenues from sales and subscriptions, and 50 percent from grants.

In one way or another, most all of Calyx's grant monies came from the National Endowment for the Arts.

Under Reagan's proposals one-half of NEA's budget was to be cut, but Donnelly feels that with the appointment of a new director to the NEA, and the current battle to pass the budget on capital hill, the cuts may be even deeper.

One thing that's going to hurt is the government's reduction of tax write-offs in relation to donations.

There have been few donations made to literature in the past. For the most part money from private interests have traditionally supported symphonies, ballets, and other performing arts, she said.

Even though Calyx is a non-profit organization, with a volunteer editorial staff of 15, the journal is down to the last hole in its "cost efficiency" belt.

This Fall's Oct. issue has been delayed until the current deficit can be made up, hopefully through such fund-raising activities as Calyx's wine-tasting reception to be held this Thursday (Dec. 3) at the Corvallis Women's Club.

Similar efforts are planned in both Portland this spring and Seattle by summer.

All further issues will be suspended until funding to underwrite each issue's cost can be secured, she said.

"We're going to review our format, our editorial bias, and rethink strategies, in order to keep the publication without a quality loss," said Donnelly.

Confronted with the need to redesign, Donnelly believes the journal can become self-supporting in about one-and-one-half years.

Calyx operates on a national level, and the possibility of working with a national distributor and incorporating some advertising are both being considered. The possibility of including reviews is also being looked at, in the interest of broadening the base of appeal, she added.

But no matter how you look at it, Calyx is in need of support. Its national circulation of 2,000 editions three times annually for $10 per subscription needs to be expanded.

"If we had 250-500 supporters in the $50 to $150 range, or even a contribution of 1000 at $10, we could probably make it," Donnelly said. "I know there has to be at least that many supporters out there!"

But, because of NEA cutbacks Calyx will be hosting a benefit wine-tasting reception in Corvallis, Thursday Dec. 3.

Three nationally known novelists—Kate Wilhelm, winner of the Hugo Award for best novel "Where Late the Sweet Birds Sang"; M.K. Wren, author of "The Phoenix Legacy a Trilogy"; and Joyce Thompson author of "The Blue Chair" and "Hothouse", will be the guests of honor.

Domestic, continental, and fine

Oregon wines from The Wine Man will be featured, along with non-alcoholic beverages and appetizers. Corvallis artists—Faylinda Kodis, Anne Krosby, and Vicki Shuck will exhibit their works, and musical entertainment will be provided.

The public is cordially invited. Tickets are $15, $10, $5 on a sliding fee scale to accommodate single income families and students. Advance tickets are available from: The Troubadour, Everybody's Records, Grass Roots Bookstore, Gandalf's Den and the CALYX Office, 216 SW Madison. Tickets will be available at the door the night of the benefit. For more information contact Calyx 753-9384.
